After the Game...

"Many of you know that it is a New Year. And when a new year rolls around, a lot of people have these things called "New Year's Resolutions". They're basically like goals that people hope to accomplish in the new year. Some people want to lose weight, eat healthier, stop doing something bad, get a new job, write a book, get married, watch less TV, etc. Most of the time though, these goals last for about...well...a week or less. While it's not a bad thing to set goals, sometimes it can be hard to accomplish them because of a lack of knowing what to do and how to do it. That's what we refer to as "knowledge". Here's what we're saying knowledge is all this month..."
